

Will your home stand the test against wildfire?

During the property owners meeting in October we learned that there is an opportunity for homeowners to have a risk assessment done on their structure by the Georgia Forestry Commission. This assessment will look at what risk the structure or property might be against a wildfire. An agency employee will do the assessment free of charge after you make an appointment. They will then be able to make recommendations as to how you can mitigate the threat. In Gilmer County please call their office at 706-635-2363 to take advantage of this service.
